Wee History of The Station

This old established hostelry dates back to the year 1850 when a licence was first granted to a gentleman called 'Samuel Forrester' to sell porter and spirits. The premises then were very small, surrounded by a cart shed, stables and two workshops. Mr Forrester was not just a spirit dealer he also sold hay and grain; he continued to sell liquor here until the year 1865.

At the end of the 19th Century the old premises were demolished and replaced by the new red sandstone building Mr Duffy then had a brand new public house with his name above the door "Philip Duffy Wines & Spirit Vaults".

It's 1937 'Mr Patrick F. Mc Goorty' now took over the premises and renamed it the 'Station Bar'. He ran the premises through World War II until eventually in 1950 he sold it on to 'Mr Edward Foley'. In 1973 Mr Foley passed away and his wife took over until selling it on too Mr Matthew Reid who sadly passed in 2013.

The torch was then passed to the Mc Hugh brothers in 1987. In 2006 The Station Bar was purchased by Joe's son Michael. Your host. Michael is also the current President of 'The Scottish Licensed Trade Association' and Collector of the Incorporation of Maltmen in Glasgow.

The TSB is famed for its choice of Ales now served by our trusty team, we wish you a warm welcome to our traditional, privately owned, historic bar.
